

Last Plea Is Made To Save Peachtree Bandit From Death

Commutation of Sentence to Life Imprisonment Urged in Appeal to the Prison Commission.

FAIR TRIAL DENIED HIM, SAYS PETITION

Condemned Youth Has the Mind of 13-Year-Old Child, According to the Claim of His Lawyer.

Application for commutation of the death sentence of Frank B. DuPre to life imprisonment was filed with the Georgia prison commission Wednesday by Attorney H. A. Allen.

Among other contentions the petition set forth that DuPre did not get a fair and impartial trial for the reason that he was placed on trial very soon after the crime was committed and when the public mind was undergoing a period of excitement caused by publicity given to the case, and that the condemned youth has the mind of a 13-year-old child, and is not capable of exercising the discretion of an older person.

The petition also called attention to the claim made at DuPre's trial that he was under the influence of whiskey when he held up the Nat Kaiser jewelry store and killed Irvy C. Walker, Pinkerton detective, and that "he never deliberately planned to murder or injure anyone, but his low mentality allowed him to become completely under the influence of evil associates and the bad liquor which had been given him, and whatever he did was without a full realization of what he was doing."

Findings of Psychologist.

Attorney Allen stated Wednesday afternoon that when the prison commission grants a hearing on the petition he will substantiate DuPre's petition with the testimony of a psychologist who recently spent nearly two days in testing the youth's mentality. Her findings were that he is the intellect of a child of 12 years and 11 months of age.

In part, the petition reads: "Petitioner shows that he did not get a fair and impartial trial for the reason that he was placed on trial very soon after the crime charged against him is alleged to have been committed, while the public mind was undergoing a period of excitement caused by the unusual amount of publicity given to the case and his arrest."

"That several inflammatory articles had appeared in the public press just a few days before his trial, and on Sunday night before his trial commenced on Thursday a preacher by the name of Han used petitioner's case as a subject for his sermon and made some very strong and sensational statements about his case, demanding that he be hung and denouncing him most cruelly."

"Denied Fair Trial."

"That all this publicity had inflamed the public mind against him and had made it impossible for him to secure the fair and impartial trial guaranteed him by the constitution and laws of the state."

DuPre was indicted in December, 1921, and was convicted on January 28, 1922. He was sentenced to hang on March 10. He filed a motion for a new trial and it was overruled on March 15, and the case was then taken to the supreme court on a bill of exceptions.

The supreme court stood equally divided on two of the questions involved. Four of the six sustained points raised in the appeal for a second trial, but not more than three of them could give the same reason for thinking that a new trial should be granted. Attorney Allen sought a new hearing on the new trial motion, but it was denied.

It became known Wednesday that several well-known Atlanta women are circulating petitions addressed to the prison commission urging that DuPre's sentence be commuted from execution to life imprisonment.

It is expected that the application for commutation will come up for hearing at the capitol at a very early date.

DuPre is now under sentence to hang on September 1.

1,200 Miles Air Line From Atlanta, But Hears Station WGM Distinctly

Twelve hundred miles is a mighty distance when it is that between a radio broadcasting station and a receiving set. But that is the distance which is being covered by Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution.

The Constitution yesterday received word to this effect from Dr. Arthur T. Caine, of Anoka, Minn., whose letter reads as follows:

"Write to tell you that we have heard messages from your station several times of late. One night a lecture was heard in my home as distinctly as though it were being delivered here. This may be of interest to you, as I think that the distance is close to 1,200 miles on an airline."

"ARTHUR T. CAINE."

Similar reports of reception of Station WGM's signals in dozens of states are received daily by The Constitution, but Anoka, Minn., was reported in Dr. Caine's letter for the first time.

LONG IS CUTTING AWAY REED LEAD IN MISSOURI RACE

Senator Reed's Lead Reduced From 25,000 to 8,935 as Belated Returns Come In.

IF RATIO HOLDS UP, LONG MAY BE WINNER

Returns From Other Primaries Show No Change From Trend of Early Reports.

Error Discovered

St. Louis, Mo., August 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Senator James A. Reed gained 965 votes when a telegraphic error in returns from Bates county was rectified tonight, and is now leading Breckinridge Long by 8,935 votes on the face of returns from 3,406 out of 3,848 precincts. The vote: Reed, 185,350; Long, 176,445.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis, August 2.—Senator James A. Reed is leading Breckinridge Long for the democratic nomination of United States senator by 7,744 votes, on the face of returns from all but 508 of the 3,848 precincts in Missouri. Returns from 3,340 precincts at 10 o'clock tonight give: Reed 182,238; Long 174,494.

The senator's lead, which reached more than 25,000 this morning, was steadily whittled away as belated returns from rural districts where the Long strength laid, came in. Throughout the day Mr. Long maintained a consistent gain with an average lead of approximately 18 votes per precinct in the country districts.

If this ratio is maintained in 508 precincts yet to be heard from, Mr. Long has a chance of winning probably by less than 2,000 votes.

In the republican senatorial race, R. H. Brewster, of Kansas City, endorsed by the regular organization, probably will win from 20,000 to 30,000 votes.

ANTI-KLAN CANDIDATE WINS.

Oklahoma City, Okla., August 1. With approximately two-thirds of the estimated total vote counted tonight, Mayor J. C. Walton, of Oklahoma City, former Klansman and anti-Klan candidate, appeared virtually assured of the democratic nomination for governor. Walton increased his lead over R. H. Wilson, state superintendent of public instruction, and alleged K. K. K. candidate, to almost 20,000 votes on the face of unofficial returns from 1,686 precincts out of a total of 2,837 in Oklahoma. The vote stood Walton 70,280; Wilson 50,729; Thomas H. Owen 38,264. Owen, a former state supreme court justice, conceded Walton's nomination today.

With all incoming returns bringing big increases for Walton it appeared that his plurality would run much over 20,000 on the final tabulation.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR WHITE PLANT

Work on the First Unit, Which Will Be Erected at a Cost of $101,000, Will Begin Immediately.

Contract for construction of the first unit of the new and enlarged plant of the White Provision company was Wednesday awarded the Griffin Construction company, of Atlanta, the work to include new engine and boiler rooms, a new bi-products building and a sales and shipping building.

The entire construction of this unit will cost $101,000, the equipment of the trio of structures running the total up to $158,000. The work is a part of the enlargement program of the company, which will total about $400,000, including equipment.

Work on the first unit of construction is to begin immediately, according to the contract, and is to be completed within five months. Architects are now working on plans for the second unit, which includes erection of a five-story coldstorage building facing Howell Mill road, a sausage factory and a smoked meat building.

As soon as it is well under way, erection of the third unit will be begun. This unit calls for a new five-story slaughter house, the killing to be done on the top floor and all accessory departments to the handling of the fresh meat to be quartered on the lower floors.

The entire program of enlargement, which was authorized by stockholders of the company this year, will be rushed to completion as soon as possible, according to W. H. White, Jr., president of the company.

The sales and shipping building, which was included in the first unit, Mr. White explained, because of the urgent need for expansion of quarters in this department.

Germans Are Determined To Fight Again, Says Edna

Miss Ferber Says Germany Is Gangrene Spot of World

BY EDNA FERBER,
Noted Short Story Writer; Author of "The Girls."
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

Paris, August 2.—This article concerns the most interesting and problematic spot on the map today—Germany.

And Germany's condition at this moment is about as static as a Kansas twister and twice as dangerous. Any American tourist with more than half vision who has visited Germany this year will agree that it is the paradox of the world.

Of all the European countries Germany is at once the cheapest and the most expensive; the gayest and the dreariest; the most comfortable and the most wretched. For good measure, in attempting to describe it, one throws in such mixed adjectives as fascinating, horrible, depressing, feverish, lethargic, absorbing, infuriating, pitiable, alarming.

Childish Reasoning.

It's all very well for those of you who are not interested in Germany and its life or death to say it's all very well; brought to say it's all very well; let 'em take their medicine; imagine what they'd have done with us if they had won; we're all right over here in the United States; they can't touch us; nothing the matter with our country. That line of reasoning is as childish and short-sighted as though one were to say, "I've got blood poisoning in my left leg and gangrene has set in, but the rest of my body is perfectly healthy. Yes, my body is perfectly healthy."

LEADING GEORGIA WOMEN BACKING GOOD ROAD BONDS

Mrs. Robert L. Berner Tells Legislators That 80,000 Women Are Supporting the Movement.

PAGE TELLS OF WORK IN NORTH CAROLINA

Women Say If Legislature Fails to Heed Plea They Will Demand Good Roads at Polls.

Eighty thousand women representing 23 organizations in the state are firmly behind the movement for a state bond issue to provide a system of good roads in Georgia and intend to use their votes and influence to see that legislation is enacted to that end, members of the Georgia general assembly and visiting county commissioners in convention here, were told Wednesday night by Mrs. Robert L. Berner, of Macon, at a good roads rally held in the chambers of commerce.

Directing her appeal to members of the legislature, Mrs. Berner, whose late husband was for years one of the leading good roads advocates in the state, declared that she was voicing the opinion of 80,000 clubwomen in the state who were determined to not rest until Georgia has a system of highways second to none in the country.

"I come before you, gentlemen of the general assembly," asserted Mrs. Berner, "and beg you to enact legislation that will provide good roads for our state. I won't demand at this time, but unless you heed our appeal I will demand it, and there are 80,000 other women who now have the right to express their opinion at the polls who will do likewise."

"How can you continue deferring action on such an important movement for our good roads? If you don't give us good roads, then you are putting Georgia back fifty years in comparison to other states."

Mrs. Rambo Speaks.

Mrs. R. K. Rambo, of Decatur, chairman of the local women's good roads committee, reiterated the appeal of Mrs. Berner, as did also Mrs. Orris Massey, of Macon, president of the Dixie Highway auxiliary of Bibb county, both of whom spoke briefly on the subject.

Declaring that North Carolina had shown its faith in the state by approving a bond issue of $50,000,000 for a good roads program, Mrs. Rambo appealed to the Georgia solons to "show a similar spirit and have faith in Georgia."

"The women of Georgia are prepared to do their bit in providing good roads for the state," Mrs. Rambo declared. "We realize the tremendous advantages that will accrue to our rural sections when a system of good roads is established here. Take the Atlanta curb market as an example. There are farmers drawn up alongside the curb here three times a week with their farm trucks, who have journeyed anywhere from 75 to 100 miles, and they had to come here on our highways."

"The women of Atlanta and Georgia have already been active in beautifying the roads we have at present. We have planted hundreds of trees as living monuments to our loved ones who made the supreme sacrifice during the recent war. We pledge ourselves to aid in the good roads work to the limit of our abilities."

Mrs. Massey spoke along similar lines and stated that women of Georgia had their eyes on the legislature awaiting to see what it intended doing to further the good roads program. She stated there were approximately 7,000 more women in Georgia than men and if it became necessary for the women to show their hand in demanding good roads legislation, they would do so.

INCOME TAX FIGHT WILL OPEN TODAY

First of the Proposed New Taxation System Measures Scheduled to Come Up for Passage.

The real fight of the present legislature over the passage of tax measures will come in the house Thursday when the income tax bill, the first proposed new taxation system, will come up for passage. With the house voting 104 to 86 Wednesday to repeal the present tax equalization law, the way was cleared for the consideration of tax measures which must bring into the treasury substantial increases over the revenue of last year if appropriations to confederate pensioners are to be paid and the schools are to be maintained on their old basis, according to statement of George Carswell, representative from Wilkinson, and other house leaders.

Intense interest was shown by legislative leaders in the final vote on the tax repeal measure in the house Wednesday. The bill to win had to receive a constitutional majority, which is 104 votes. When the votes were counted it was announced that the bill had won by 105 to 86. A ver-

Candidate Fasts And Prays on Day Before Primary

Tennessee Reform Candidate Sips Water From Gourd of Righteousness Only.

Nashville, Tenn., August 2.—Abstaining from all food, Noah W. Cooper, reform candidate for the democratic nomination as United States senator, observed Wednesday, the day preceding the primary, as a day of fasting and prayer.

Throughout the day and tonight only a few sips of water from his "gourd of righteousness" passed the "blue law" advocate's lips. He declares that hundreds of persons all over the state are fasting and praying with him.

Mr. Cooper has practically completed his collection of 96 gourd sips he will carry to Washington for presentation to the senators if he is elected. He has issued an invitation to the members of the senate to attend a cord-bread and turnip greens dinner after his election.

Interest Keen.

Political leaders, both democratic and republican, are watching the outcome of tomorrow's primary election with great interest because of the fact that on the November election those nominated tomorrow will have the first test of party strength since Tennessee broke away from the "solid south" and gave its vote to President Harding.

Chief interest centers on the democratic senatorial and gubernatorial contests. Captain Gus T. Fitzhugh and Noah W. Cooper, "blue law" advocate, are opposing Senator Kenneth D. McKellar for the senatorial nomination. The contest has been a bitter and hard-fought one. Captain Fitzhugh has attacked Senator McKellar's record in the senate, while McKellar has retaliated by denouncing Fitzhugh's campaign expenditures. Mr. Cooper declares he is "running only against Satan and his works."

Four-Cornered Race.

The gubernatorial contest is a four-cornered affair between Governor Benton McMillan Austin Peay, General Harvey Hannah and L. E. Gwinn. Much interest is manifested in this race because the nominee will oppose Governor Alf A. Taylor, republican, for re-election in November.

Cordell Hull, democratic national chairman, who was defeated in the republican landslide two years ago, is unopposed. He will oppose Representative Clouse, republican, in the general election.

Representative Finis J. Garrett, minority house leader, is opposed for re-nomination by W. W. Craig, of Ripley. Representatives Davis, Byrns and Fisher are unopposed for re-election.

ANOTHER SUSPECT PUT UNDER ARREST IN MURDER PROBE

Claud Martin Held at Fulton County Tower, Following the Discovery of McElreath's Body.

PRISONER IS BARRED FROM SEEING FRIENDS

Frank Ellis Exonerated and Released After Inquest Is Held by Campbell County Jury.

Following the release of Frank Ellis, 21, of 93 Capitol square, by the coroner's jury in Fairburn Wednesday morning in connection with the murder of Homer McElreath, road engineer, Claud Martin, 23, residing on the Campbellton road, was held at the Fulton county jail late Wednesday night without bond on charges of suspicion of murder. Martin's arrest was made on orders of Solicitor John A. Boykin by County Officers Marvin Baker and Arthur Atkinson.

Following Martin's arrest Solicitor Boykin issued orders that he was to see no one, and he was placed in the row of isolated cells on the fourth tier at the Fulton county tower. Friends, who asserted a belief in his innocence were refused admission to his cell when they called to see him during the night. It is understood he will be carried before Solicitor Boykin early Thursday morning for questioning concerning the murder.

Martin, the officers stated, denied his guilt, and stated that he would be able to prove an alibi concerning his whereabouts on Saturday night, when the murder is alleged to have taken place.

Funeral Services Held.

Funeral services for McElreath were held Wednesday afternoon at the Owl Rock church, and burial followed in the churchyard. Ben Hill lodge, No. 674, F. & A. M., was in charge of the graveside services. Surviving him are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McElreath; four brothers, Claude, Charley, Walter and Harry McElreath, and three sisters, Misses Margaret, Mae and Ethel McElreath.

Following the coroner's inquest Wednesday, at which Ellis was freed when he established an alibi, Fulton county police and Campbell county officials indicated that they still believe that robbery was the motive for the crime.

Little evidence is placed in the theory advanced that whiskey men had slain McElreath because they suspected him of interfering with their operations.

Verdict Is Rendered.

After a coroner's jury heard the testimony of witnesses for three hours, the following verdict was rendered: "We, the coroner's jury impaneled to investigate the killing of Homer McElreath, after hearing all the evidence in the case, find that Homer McElreath was murdered by parties unknown and that sufficient evidence has not been produced for this jury to recommend the arrest or holding of any persons for the crime."

Ellis was arrested Tuesday after it had been reported that his description tallied with that of a man last seen with McElreath Saturday night. His story that he was at the Lancaster farm from 4:30 Saturday afternoon until the same time Sunday was substantiated by the testimony of Miss Mamie Lancaster, his fiancée, J. H. Lancaster, her brother, and others who attended a Bible study class at the Lancaster home Saturday night.

Ellis told the jury he did not know McElreath and had never seen him. Homer Fullman and J. S. Askew testified that on Saturday evening, while passing near where the body was later found they saw a small car in the road, with a man lying beneath it. A hat was on the running board. They said the hat appeared similar to the hat of the dead man. They said the man under the machine did not move where they passed.

Saw Car Pass.

An hour later, they testified, a man driving a machine of the same make driven by McElreath passed them going in the direction they were going. They were unable to give a description of the driver because of the darkness.

Information gathered by officers is that McElreath was last seen Saturday evening about nightfall when he left Ben Hill in his automobile, which he operates as a taxicab on Saturday and Sunday, bound for the Andrew Stewart farm, one mile beyond the point where the body was found.

The condition of his body showed that he had been severely beaten. It was so badly mutilated it was not possible to determine if he had been shot.

SIXTEEN ARE INJURED IN RAILROAD WRECK

LaGrande, Ore., August 2.—Sixteen persons were injured, one possibly fatally, in the wreck of train No. 4 on the Oregon Washington Railroad and Navigation company, 41 miles east of here today. The wreck was caused by a broken rail near North Fork, according to reports received by railroad officials here. The train was thrown into a ditch.

Striking Shopmen Accept Proposal To Settle Strike

GEORGIA FACED BY COAL FAMINE, STATES CANDLER

Stocks Low in Every Part of the State, According to Answers to Questionnaires of Rail Board.

INDUSTRIAL PLANTS WILL BE HARD HIT

Governor Hardwick Hopeful House Will Act Favorably Today on Plan for Fuel Commission.

Danger of a serious coal shortage throughout the state within the next few weeks, particularly in industrial circles, confronts Georgia, according to C. Murphy Candler, chairman of state railroad commission.

That a fuel shortage is imminent was apparent Wednesday, Mr. Candler said, after many questionnaires, which he had sent to various Georgia interests, had been returned to his office.

Practically every questionnaire received indicated that Georgia's coal supply is almost exhausted, and unless the emergency arising from the nationwide strike of railroad shopmen and the general walkout of union mine-workers is settled within a short time, public utilities and industries of the state will face a crisis.

Hopeful Bill Will Pass.

Governor Hardwick was hopeful Wednesday that the bill providing for the appointment of an emergency fuel commission in compliance with the request of the federal fuel control organization introduced in the legislature at his suggestion will be passed Thursday when it comes up in the lower house for consideration.

Meantime the state is without authority to enforce the coal priority order of the interstate commerce commission.

Chairman Candler said Wednesday that certain railroads in Georgia have refused to comply with priority requisitions not having the approval of proper authorities. He said that the railroads in question have in all instances referred the requisitions to the state commission for its approval.

"The state railroad commission has no authority to invoke the rulings of those who are directing the fuel distribution of the country," said Mr. Candler.

Under the transportation act of 1920 the interstate commerce commission has power to assume control.

SENATE MAY VOTE TARIFF AUGUST 15

Move by the Democrats Forces Hand of G. O. P. Leaders—To Agree on Early Date.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, August 2.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Developments of unusual importance pointing to a vote by unanimous consent agreement on the tariff bill by August 15, and immediate consideration of the soldier bonus thereafter, occurred at the capitol today as a result of conferences held by democratic and republican leaders of the senate.

It is also reliably understood that the ship subsidy bill will be held over until the next session.

Following a meeting Tuesday night of minority leaders, Senator Simmons, North Carolina, and ranking democrat of the finance committee, submitted a proposal to the senate today that a vote be taken on the tariff by August 19. The North Carolina member proposed that after August 11 the senate proceed without further debate to vote upon all amendments that may be pending or offered, and that the measure be brought to a final vote on the date mentioned.

Coincident with this, it was learned that republican leaders of the senate also had held a conference Tuesday night at the home of Senator Lodge, majority leader. At the republican meeting it was proposed that the tariff bill be voted on not later than September 1, and that immediately thereafter the bonus bill will be taken up. From no discussion having been made of the ship subsidy, it is taken to be held over.

Peace Proposals Made by President Harding Are Accepted in Full by the Union Leaders.

'ACCEPT RELUCTANTLY,' THEY SAY IN MESSAGE

They Assert That Refusal to Restore Seniority Rights Would Be "Unparalleled Injustice."

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, August 2.—Full acceptance of the peace proposals submitted by President Harding was voted tonight by leaders of the striking railway shopmen, who, however, gave their own interpretation of each of the three suggestions.

"We accept reluctantly, it is true, but we commit ourselves to carry out the terms of settlement in utmost good faith and in aid of the general welfare," said the message of acceptance which was sent to President Harding tonight. "If these proposals fail to bring about the results which you desire, the responsibility of failure will not rest upon representatives of the organized employees."

On the proposal to restore unimpaired seniority rights to the strikers, which was rejected by railway executives at a meeting yesterday in New York, the message declared:

Would Be Injustice.

"It would certainly be a wholesale injustice on unparalleled extent if hundreds of thousands of experienced men who have given four to forty years' service and whose value to the transportation industry is proportioned to the length of their service, should be placed in a position of inferiority to a limited number of men who have been employed as substitutes for these experienced railroad workers."

Replying to the president's suggestion that railroads and workmen agree to abide by decisions of the railroad labor board, the reply said the shopmen had always taken the position that so long as they continued to render service, they should abide by the rules and working conditions by proper negotiations or determined by the labor board after a hearing of a dispute.

Violations of the law and refusal to abide by decisions of the board "have been exhibited only by the railway managements," the reply said, and asserted that suspension of work under nonacceptable conditions was not in violation of the board's decisions.

On Lawsuit Clause.

On the president's proposal that lawsuits growing out of the strike be withdrawn and that railroad labor board decisions to which exception is taken by either side may be taken to the board by either side for a rehearing, the message said that it was the understanding of the union leaders that the labor board would give a prompt rehearing and decision of questions in dispute and there would be no question as to who are the properly accredited spokesmen of the vast majority of railway employees."

The decision accepting the president's suggestions was reached after the policy committee of ninety men of the shopcrafts organization had considered the proposal for two days. After the executive committee had decided to recommend acceptance, the policy committee followed its recommendation, but demanded that it be given the right to give approval to the message of acceptance and the interpretation of the proposal sent to the president tonight.

Timothy Healey, president of the firemen and oilers' union, which is also on strike, signed the shopmen's acceptance of the president's proposal, stating that his union would abide by

MINE STRIKE END BELIEVED NEARER

Cleveland Conference Called by Lewis Seen as Definite Step Toward Bituminous Peace.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, August 2.—The mine strike conference called by President John L. Lewis to meet in Cleveland next Monday is viewed by official observers here as a definite step toward peace.

A sufficient number of operators in the central competitive field is expected to attend to negotiate a settlement that may be applied to the bituminous industry as a whole.

Government experts are not dismayed by the published refusal of several central competitive field operators to attend the Cleveland meeting. In intimate, confidential touch with the mine tie-up just as much since the president's conference adjourned without agreement, as before, their authentic information is that about 30 per cent of the central competitive field tonnage will be represented at the parley.

While this 30 per cent is not a numerical majority of the field's normal production, nevertheless it is said to be strong enough to set the pace for the remaining 70 per cent of output. Strategic conditions in the central competitive field, it was said, are such as to enable those operators who are expected to accept Lewis' conference call to make a wage settlement that those operators who refuse the call will be unable to set aside.

Despite this optimistic view, the administration's coal distributing machinery has begun to function. With the approval of Secretary Hoover, Federal Distributor Spencer and his committee have sent instructions to the regional coal committee in 22 states.

On July 25, the commission issued its service order No. 3, which outlined the government's plan for assuring each state its pro rata share of the coal supply.

Subsequently the Georgia railroad commission was asked by the interstate commission if it would act as a committee to enforce the priority ruling in Georgia.

On behalf of the commission, Chairman Sandler assured Washington, that the Georgia commission would support the government to the extent of its financial ability, explaining that funds necessary for the compensation of additional clerical help are not available. No further word has been received by the state commission.

Subsequently the presidential fuel committee has been appointed, and H. B. Spencer named fuel distributor. It is in conjunction with Mr. Spencer and Secretary Herbert Hoover that the proposed state emergency fuel commission will work.

Canvas of Atlanta coal dealers Wednesday night developed that the city's supply is already very low.

No orders for coal are being taken except for future delivery, and no promises are made as to delivery dates. In many instances purchasers will be required to pay the rate prevalent at the time of delivery.

TENNESSEE MEMBER OF CONGRESS DEAD

Washington, August 2.—Representative Lemuel P. Padgett, of Tennessee, died early today at his home here.

Mr. Padgett, who was war-time chairman of the house naval committee, had been ill at his residence here for two months. The body will be taken to his home at Columbia for burial.

First elected from the seventh Tennessee district to the fifty-seventh congress, Mr. Padgett had served continuously for 22 years.

In the recent house fight over the naval appropriation bill, Mr. Padgett attracted attention by standing firm against efforts to reduce the personnel of the navy below the figure which the president and the department regarded as unwise. Although most members of his party voted to cut the enlisted force Mr. Padgett opposed it, declaring his experience as former head of the naval committee convinced him the country could not afford to "go as low" as the framers of the bill had contemplated.

The house will be represented at the funeral by members of the Tennessee delegation, Chairman Butler, Pennsylvania; Howard, New York; Britten, Illinois; McArthur, Oregon; Swing, California; and Oliver, Alabama, who served with Mr. Padgett on the naval committee, and Representatives Wingo, Arkansas, and Sanders, Indiana.

Informing Mr. Padgett's death Acting Secretary Roosevelt, of the navy, said:

"I am deeply grieved to hear of the death of Congressman Padgett. The navy has lost an able and true friend. When matters of national interest came up for consideration, Congressman Padgett based his actions on a consideration and one only—patriotism."

WAS CANDIDATE IN PRIMARY TODAY.

Nashville, Tenn., August 2.—Lemuel P. Padgett, representative in congress from the seventh Tennessee district, had been in congress continuously since the fifty-seventh congress, and was a candidate in the democratic primary to be held tomorrow.

Mr. Padgett was opposed for re-election by Judge W. C. Salmon, like Mr. Padgett, a resident of Columbia, and owing to ill health had not been able to take any part in the contest. His friends in the district, however, had organized in the various counties and were loyally at work.

Advices from the district were to the effect that he would be re-nominated without difficulty. News of his death was a shock here as well as at Columbia, though private advices in the latter place had recently indicated that he was in a serious condition.

In Tennessee Mr. Padgett was regarded as one of the leading members of the Tennessee delegation.

At one time during the world war, more than 1,000 leading chemists were at work in improvised laboratories in Washington, D. C.

Cross-Country Hike Of 3,900 Miles Made By Georgia Graduate

Athens, Ga., August 2.—(Special.) A total of 3,900 miles in 34 days, an average of 161 miles a day, is the record that Andrew Bloomink, University of Georgia graduate of the class of 1922, made in his cross-country walk from Athens to Portland, Oregon, which he began, June 22, and which he has just completed, according to information that has reached here.

Mr. Bloomink set out from Athens on foot the next day after he received his sheep skin from the State university, carrying nothing with him except a small knapsack and a canteen. He made the trip by Atlanta, Louisville, Indianapolis, Colorado Springs, Cheyenne, Yellowstone Park, Spokane and Seattle, passing through thirteen states.

He reports that this period of 30 days he climbed Pike Peak. This is considered one of the best records for a trip on foot ever established.

U. S. SENATOR CROW DIED ON WEDNESDAY

Uniontown, Pa., August 2.—United States Senator William E. Crow died at his country home in the mountains near here this morning.

Senator Crow was taken ill three years ago and was never afterward considered physically fit. A few months ago his physicians announced that he was suffering from pernicious anemia, and that blood transfusion had been resorted to on a number of occasions.

William Evans Crow was born on a farm in Fayette county, March 10, 1870. He was educated in the country schools and at the Pennsylvania state normal school at California, Pa. After serving as a teacher for two years he became a newspaper reporter in Pittsburgh. He abandoned this field for Uniontown where he became editor of The Uniontown Standard in 1904. He studied law and in 1905 was admitted to the Fayette county bar. A month after his admission to the bar he was appointed an assistant district attorney and within three years was elected district attorney.

Always a republican in politics, Mr. Crow in 1905 was made secretary of the republican county committee and elevated to the chairmanship four years later.

He met his first political reverse in 1908 when he was defeated for state senator. This he overcame in 1906 and from that time until his appointment by Governor Sprout to succeed the late Philander C. Knox, in the United States senate, he was continuously a member of the Pennsylvania upper legislative body. He was made chairman of the republican state committee in 1909.

Senator Crow became so ill after his appointment to the United States senate that his only appearance in the capitol was the day on which he took the oath of office.

The Bar and the Crime.

Speeding up the law's delay, devising ways as I means whereby to insure more uniform and more rigid enforcement of law, particularly as it applies to "crime waves," and the advocacy of uniform state laws relating to corporations, on divorce, extradition and law enforcement, are to constitute the headline activities which will feature the annual convention of the American Bar Association, opening in San Francisco next Wednesday.

This convention, according to Cordenio A. Severance, president of the association, will be "the most important conference in the organization's history," and if it results in the attainment of the reforms fore-shadowed by its program it will accomplish much in the way of benefit to the American public.

It is said that of the three main topics slated for discussion and action by the convention the matter of uniform laws commands the chief interest of lawyers and courts.

For several years the national bar association, has been working toward a plan under which the federal supreme court would work out a set of rules to insure uniformity of jury case laws in the various states, after the fashion of federal equity cases; and its results, its advocates claim, would be to make the status of any case the same in one state as in another and would be of great benefit to the legal profession as well as to the lay citizens of the country.

But popular interest undoubtedly is centered more in the proposal to curtail if not totally eliminate the evil of "the law's delay"—an evil that is felt by every community and by every citizen who suffers from the effects of crime.

Chief Justice Taft has recently completed an exhaustive study of English court procedure with a view to preparing and recommending a concrete plan for "simplifying the procedure and for speeding up the process of justice in American courts."

The chief justice will personally present to the bar association the "case" of "the law's delay," and it is to be hoped that the method he has worked out in the light of his observations in England will be passed on to the people and put into operation.

In an interview appearing in a San Francisco newspaper the other day President Severance gave a forecast of the probable attitude of the bar association toward criminal court procedure and practice.

"I think personally," he said, "that—

"there has been too much evasion of jury duty by our better-class citizens, failure of citizens to use their powers of suffrage, and too many handicaps placed upon presentation of cases by district attorneys."

"Such things encourage crime," don't think much of this after-the-war crime wave alibi. The figures fail to bear it out."

Mr. Severance said that the bar association has "sought to get at the real causes" of "the grave situation resulting in so-called crime waves," and that means of combatting it will be outlined by the legislative committee.

The report of this committee, based upon months of personal investigation and study of crime conditions and of court methods here and abroad—together with whatever action the American Bar Association may take with reference to it—will be awaited with keen interest by the public.

THE FIGHT THAT WINS.

In an article on the optimistic crop outlook in Crisp, Turner and other progressive counties, The Cordelle (Ga.) Dispatch says it is due to the fact that the farmers have been fighting the boll weevil with the only weapon that wins—diversified crops.

Citing Brooks county as a notable instance, The Dispatch says:

"Brooks county farmers claim to have started twenty years ago to beat the boll weevil. Truly they did. One hears little concern about the boll weevil around Quitman. The farmers know the meaning of abundant food crops."

And it is pointed out that every one of the home-supply raising counties is on the cheerful, optimistic side of things.

They are in far better condition than others where too little attention has been given to diversified, ready-money crops; and that is why the farmers "have quite a bit of optimism in their fall behavior: They have something in good crops promised."

And that means home tables plentifully supplied, with a selling surplus that puts money in the home banks, instead of sending it out for other sections for the things that can be raised at home.

That is the fight that wins.

Joint Amendment Committees

Will Begin to Battle Today

With Two Highway Programs

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

The senate and house committees on constitutional amendments will meet this afternoon in joint session to consider the bills proposing programs for matching the federal aid funds allocated to Georgia for highway development, and for perfecting a co-ordinated system of construction and administration that will meet not only government requirements, but serve the best interests of all the counties and all the people of the state.

At a recent joint meeting of these committees two proposed programs that were considered of greatest merit were informally discussed—one by Chairman Mann, of the house committee on highways, and the other by Representative Perryman, of Talbot, of the same committee. These plans both paralleled on the main procedure as to usable state-wide system of roads, one in each county, thus linking up the county seats; hard surface where necessary, and so on, the difference in the two proposals revolving around proposed methods of raising the match funds, and the number of constitutional amendments necessary to submit to the people in order to provide for the funds, and also to provide refunds to those counties that have already financed and completed their respective links of the state road chain.

The program proposed by Representative Mann carried two amendments, while that of Representative Perryman carried the whole program in one.

The joint committee therefore requested Representative Mann to introduce in the house the necessary measures covering his program, which he has done—and the measures have been analyzed and reviewed at length in these columns—and requested Representative Perryman to do the same thing.

The Perryman set of bills will be introduced this morning, having been finally completed last night, and the two committees, sitting in joint session today, will take both plans under consideration, and report either one or the other, or harmonize them. The latter will probably be done.

THE CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

TO BE SUBMITTED TODAY.

The Perryman constitutional amendment provides also for meeting the federal road appropriation without any increase in taxation.

It authorizes the issuance for the years 1923, 1924 and 1925 of non-interest bearing certificates of indebtedness.

On these there will be neither interest nor sinking fund necessary, and therefore the tax heretofore levied on automobile licenses and gasoline will be available for the general needs of the state during those three years.

At the end of the three years it is provided that these non-interest bearing certificates shall be replaced by bonds and beginning with 1926 the automobile license tax and the gasoline tax are available for interest and sinking fund on the bonds.

The amount of the bonds is limited by the proposed amendment to such an amount as could be taken care of, both interest and sinking fund, by the two taxes named.

It is also provided in the Perryman amendment that the counties entitled to reimbursement under the act of the legislature of 1919 shall be reimbursed, but the reimbursement is properly limited to not more than 20 per cent each year. Beginning in 1926 no additional bonds or certificates shall be issued unless and until specifically authorized by the legislature.

The amendment, it will be seen, takes care of a road construction plan for three years without any increase in taxes and without any increase in the general fund of the state, and receiving, and also will enable the state during those three years to receive the federal good roads fund, whatever that fund may be.

The amount of the bonds is so limited that no additional tax will ever be needed to meet them, and the men who own automobiles and who are desirous of continuing to pay this tax will be the men who will get the benefit of the good roads.

The amendment also creates a bond commission composed of the governor, comptroller general and the state treasurer, to protect the public in the issuance and sale of the certificates and the bonds. The bonds are limited for a 30-year period. Beginning in 1926, if the legislature so desire, provision can be made for the further issuance of bonds provided the tax specifically named justify additional bonds.

The proposed amendment also protects the maintenance of the present state highway system and provides for a highway commission. By thus combining provisions for the management of the state highway system and for the reimbursement of the counties, and by limiting the amount of the bonds so that no new taxes will be created or necessary, the proposed constitutional amendment meets all objections that have been urged to an issue of good roads bonds.

Accompanying the constitutional amendment, Mr. Perryman has a bill providing in detail for carrying out the amendment, containing the same limitations as the amendment, and also providing that there shall first be built a usable system of roads. A usable system of roads is defined as roads containing permanent bridge construction and grading but with only such surface as shall reasonably be needed to meet the traffic on each particular road. Hard surface roads are permitted to the extent and only to the extent necessary to comply with the federal statute. It is estimated by the state highway engineer, Mr. Neal, that during the three years, 1923 to 1925 inclusive, there can be constructed an

IN PHILADELPHIA

The first indication that the Atlanta convention of the Elks next July will be fully up to the dazzling standard set by recent gatherings of the order came to light Wednesday, when a special representative of the Philadelphia lodge visited the city to make preliminary arrangements for parade accessories for his organization.

It is said that Philadelphia has 500 uniformed men in line at the Elks' annual gatherings and that it takes a special train to haul the paraphernalia alone, so extensive is the equipment. One division of the Quaker City display is a group of cavalry, and for this purpose 50 of the most spirited saddle horses in Atlanta are desired.

Having encountered difficulty in rounding up the proper mounts in recent convention cities, the Philadelphians are determined to let no grass grow under their feet in Atlanta, but are now searching for sufficient horses to answer their needs.

In addition to the cavalry section, the delegation also carries a band of 100 pieces, a large uniformed patrol infantry division equipped with rifles, and an artillery squad which has as its prize possession a silver-mounted cannon which is fired at one minute intervals during the line of march.

Philadelphia will contribute only one unit to this marvelous pageant which will be seen in Atlanta when the Elks come to town next July. It is expected that the event will be one of the most brilliant and colorful ever staged in the south.

BROOKHAVEN LAKE

OPEN AGAIN TODAY

TO CLUB MEMBERS

The lake at Brookhaven, the country club of the Capital City club, was opened for swimming again today, it was announced last night by club authorities.

About six weeks ago, during a severe rain, some of the storm ditches were swept away and it was considered best to close the lake to bathing until the situation could be remedied. Inasmuch as the lake is an exceedingly popular spot, the committee in charge has been rushing the work of reconstruction in order to make the lake available for swimming as soon as possible. The work is now completed and an exhaustive test of the water by experts has shown it free from pollution.

WOMAN INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. William McCrae Is Struck by Machine While Crossing Street to Board a Trolley Car.

Mrs. William McCrae, 44, of 210 Groves street, was injured seriously about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when struck by an automobile on South Pryor street. She was taken to the Grady hospital where surgeons stated that X-ray examination showed that she had suffered a fracture of the pelvis bone.

DeWitt Hembree, who was operating the auto that injured Mrs. McCrae, was arrested by Supernumerary Officer F. M. Bell under charges of reckless driving. His case was set for hearing at 8:30 a. m. August 16.

According to Mrs. J. W. Roberts, a sister of Mrs. McCrae, who resides at 173 Richardson street, her sister was crossing from the west to the east side of Pryor street, at Richardson street, at the time she was hit by the automobile. Mrs. McCrae, who was crossing Pryor street to catch a trolley car to return home at the time, was sitting in the window of Mrs. Roberts' home and saw Mrs. McCrae knocked down. Already in ill health the shock of seeing her daughter injured threw her into a severe nervous condition.

There is a difference between the statements of parties who witnessed the accident. Officer Bell stated that some said the machine was traveling at a lively clip, while others claim it was running at a moderate speed.

Funeral for Auto Victim.
Funeral services for 4-year-old Frances Ruth Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. A. Freeman, of 11 Wylie street, will be held at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Luke's Episcopal church and burial will be in Sylvester's churchyard.

The little girl died from injuries suffered Tuesday afternoon when struck by an automobile at the corner of Powell and Wylie streets.

The automobile was being operated by Mrs. M. H. Moore, 115 Waverly street, against whom a charge of reckless driving was docketed at police station. Witnesses to the accident, including the mother of the girl, said to have claimed it was unavoidable.

Mrs. Jones was released under a copy of charges.

This is the second child of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman to be killed by an automobile, and almost at the same spot. The other child was Z. A. Freeman, Jr., who was killed about three years ago.

Two Hurt in Accident.
Lee Fuller, who lives at Inman yards, and Charlie Gentle, were Wednesday recovering from serious injuries sustained shortly after 9 o'clock Tuesday morning when the automobile they were riding in collided with an inbound Marietta street car at Marietta and Guyton streets.

Fuller, according to Officers King and Betsil, was operating the automobile at the time of the collision. The force of the impact is said to have practically destroyed the automobile, and both of its occupants were thrown out against the street car, it is claimed.

MISS JANE INMAN LEAVES $100,000 TO AGNES SCOTT

The will of Miss Jane Walker Inman, which was probated in common form Wednesday morning in the office of Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries, left approximately $115,000 to Agnes Scott college, with another $50,000 to go to it eventually. This sum is now held in trust for Mrs. Sarah Inman Bell, sister of Miss Inman, during her life. It is estimated that the estate is worth $350,000.

John A. Hynds, of the law firm of Hynds & Brundson, was named executor of the will and probated it. The item that will go to the college will be known as the "Samuel M. Inman Endowment Fund" as a memorial to Miss Inman's brother, the late Samuel M. Inman.

In addition to the two bequests to Agnes Scott Miss Inman left her sister, Mrs. Mildred McPheters Inman, $100,000 and her personal jewelry; the First Presbyterian church, of which Miss Inman was a member, $5,000; and a fee simple gift of $50,000 to Mrs. Sarah Inman Bell.

E. R. Dubose, brother-in-law of Miss Inman, Henry A. Inman, Frank M. Inman, nephews, at whose home Miss Inman lived a large part of her declining months, each received $10,000.

Lucy Black, Miss Inman's maid, received $500.

FIVE-WAY APPEAL COMMITTEE URGES PLEDGES BE PAID

An appeal has been sent out by the city's five foremost welfare organizations for the men and women who pledged amounts of varied size during the "Five-Way Social Service Opportunity Campaign" last February to make good on their subscriptions.

Over 4,000 Atlantans pledged their support of the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, Associated Charities, Boy Scouts, Travelers' Aid and Y. W. C. A., at a time when funds were not only much needed to carry forward the enlarged programs of these agencies, made necessary by the increasing demands on them, but absolutely vital to their very continuance.

There is over $16,000 unpaid that was due, part on March 1, and part on June 1, that has been carried over to the beginning of the third quarter, according to a statement Wednesday of the financial committee, headed by R. A. Magill. As a result, current obligations of the agencies involved are being met with increasing difficulty and their work not only is being seriously hampered but gravely threatened with such curtailment as will affect the lives of many hundreds of the people dependent on them.

Bills for the third quarter were mailed out Tuesday and an especial appeal for donors to send in their checks promptly was made.

MISS LOUISE MILLS WILL GET DIPLOMA

Miss Louise Mills, member of the West End Presbyterian church, of Atlanta, is a member of a class of 107 students who will graduate from the Moody Bible institute, of Chicago, on August 10. Miss Mills expects to work at Nacoochee institute in the mountains of north Georgia, as a Bible teacher.

BACK PAY AWARDED TO PATROLMAN LEE

Patrolman George B. Lee, who was recently re-instated by the board of police commissioners following his removal from the force in 1920 for alleged conduct unbecoming an officer, was awarded $869.25 in back salary Wednesday afternoon by the finance committee of city council.

The police had filed a claim for $2,112.50 with council, claiming he was due this amount for the time lost. The officer's claim had been approved by the police commission and referred to the finance committee for final action.

Officer Lee was present at the meeting of the committee and answered several questions asked by Councilman Ragsdale, chairman of the committee. During the officer's suspension he earned $374.40, which was deducted from the $2,112.50 and on motion of Councilman Nutting to pay half of the remaining amount, members of the committee concurred.

The committee appropriated $1,000 to be expended in the erection of a retaining wall on West Peachtree Place between Spring and Williams streets. An additional $200 was appropriated for paving a sidewalk in front of the Grady hospital on College street.

Three inspectors for the sewerage department under the new sewer program will be added to the present force, the committee agreed. Salaries of these inspectors were approved at $150 per month each.

Woodall Dispenses Justice, in Absence Of Judge Johnson

Councilman Fred C. Woodall, from the third ward, presided at both the morning and afternoon sessions of police court Wednesday, disposing of a large number of cases.

Among the defendants that faced Councilman Woodall was Louis Jackson, negro, who was apprehended after escaping from the city stockade, leaving behind him 20 days to serve of a 30-day sentence.

Councilman Woodall imposed a straight 30-day sentence for escaping, to be effective from the date of expiration of the 20 days balance due.

H. Dewberry, 21, of 655 Chestnut street, charged with being drunk and operating an automobile, was fined $51, by Judge Woodall. It was testified that Dewberry was drunk, sitting at the steering wheel of his car, but that it was not in motion.

Richard Thomas, alleged negro burglar, was bound over to the state courts under a $1,000 bond under charges of burglary and shooting at another. He is alleged to have shot at a negro woman as he came out of a house he is alleged to have just burglarized.

APARTMENT HOUSE OWNER IS FINED $30 FOR CONTEMPT

B. A. Farrell, of the Farrell Heating and Plumbing company, was fined $30 by Judge L. Z. Rosser in his division of the municipal court Wednesday on two charges of contempt of court.

The incidents giving rise to the fines occurred during the hearing of peace proceedings instituted against Herman Maulding, negro janitor of an apartment on Eleventh street owned by Farrell.

At the hearing, while Dr. W. T. Dowling was testifying to the disorderly conduct of Maulding, Farrell stood up and remarked that the doctor should be put in jail. Judge Rosser assessed a fine of $25.00 for contempt of court, and then Farrell nonchalantly pulled out a cigarette and began to smoke, when Judge Rosser fined him an additional $5.

Sunday the janitor, said to have been drunk, was reported to the police as terrorizing the neighborhood. At police court Monday he was fined $25.00, which was paid by Mr. Farrell, his employer, who sent him back to work at the Tremont apartments. Tennants at once went to the municipal court and swore out a warrant, which ended in the trial Wednesday, when the negro was bound over to keep the peace under $1000 bond.

SODA WATER CAUSES DEATH OF YOUNG BOY

A bottle of poisoned soda-water caused the death of 4-year-old James Vernon Johnson, who lives on Washington street, in East Point, and the serious illness of his 11-month-old sister, Frances Edna, and the father, Joseph M. Johnson, according to physicians.

The little boy died shortly before 2 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was taken violently ill Tuesday afternoon, immediately after he drank some soda-water from a bottle purchased at a grocery store near his home. His father and little sister drank from the same bottle, it is said. They will recover, it is believed by doctors, although they were seriously ill.

The little boy's body will be laid to rest in Mount Zion Baptist churchyard, following funeral services to be held in the church at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. W. H. Barton will officiate.

Theater Guild Mingles Pleasure With Business

A delightful affair of Tuesday evening was the given at the Oakcrest, by Mr. and Mrs. Newton C. Wing, in honor of the Little Theater Guild.

Japanese lanterns decorated the lawn and welcomed the guests as they came.

Important announcements featured the business meeting which preceded the evening's entertainment. By unanimous vote W. B. Atchison was elected a member of the governing body in appreciation of his exceptional services to the guild. The names of a number of new members were handed in which will be passed upon by the board at its next meeting. A resolution was read concerning the change of the regular monthly meeting from the first Wednesday to the first Tuesday of each month, and will be taken up at the board meeting.

Casts were announced for the three plays to be given on August 15, together with the understudies. President Charles Chalmers complimented the guild on the sportsmanship always shown by members who try out for the various plays, and who fail of selection by the casting committee, yet keep up their interest and next time meet success in parts for which they are better fitted.

The treasurer announced that after paying the heavy expenses necessary to fit Cable hall to be the new home of the guild, and for which special lighting equipment, curtains, stage scenery and equipment was necessary, that $100 remained in the treasury from the sale of tickets for the recent performances which played to standing room only.

Well illustrating the versatility of the guild was the impromptu entertainment immediately following the business meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chalmers entertained delightfully with music; Miss Millie and Harry Pomar gave the sketch "The End of Summer," and Mr. and Mrs. Wing mystified with an example of mind-reading. After the serving of punch on the front porch, the members adjourned to the rear lawn, where a watermelon cutting was staged at which each member had a star part.

Urge State Representation In National Hall of Fame

Mrs. Howard H. McCall, vice president-general, Daughters of the American Revolution, and a prominent member of the state society, calls general attention to Georgia's patriotic opportunity to honor two of her most distinguished sons in the following statement regarding a bill which the women's organizations in Georgia—namely its two largest patriotic bodies—are urging in the present legislature:

"The very keen interest of the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution and the Georgia Daughters of the Confederacy is centered in the passage of the house bill introduced at this session of the legislature by Mr. Russell, of Barrow. The bill calls for an appropriation to be set aside in amount necessary to place in the hall of fame in the national capitol, the statues of Hon. Alexander H. Stephens and Dr. Crawford W. Long. The bill is supported in the senate by Senator Gouck and Senator Johns. Several years ago the legislature passed a bill authorizing these two statues to be placed in the hall of fame as the representatives from Georgia. At that time no money was appropriated to place the statues and the empty places allotted to Georgia makes visitors to this place impatient to see Georgia take her rightful place in the history of the states. Now that it is only necessary to secure this appropriation, the Daughters of the American Revolution, ever alert to perpetuate history, again urge the legislature to take immediate steps to provide this appropriation and the members of this splendid organization are urging their legislators to vote favorably on this bill.

While Mrs. Walter D. Lamar was president of the Georgia division, U. D. C., a committee was appointed by her to ask the legislature for an appropriation of $10,000 to place these statues. The bill was framed by Hon. A. J. Sivall, of Elberton, but on account of the stringency of the finances of the state at that time, the bill was not introduced. So in this legislative work, the two organizations have always worked together, and much was accomplished in splendid preliminary work for an appropriation. Because the finances of the state are reported to be in better condition now than for many years past, the D. A. R. made the U. D. C. feel that this would be an opportune time to concentrate their efforts in supporting this bill which, if passed, place in the empty niches in the hall of fame the statues of two of the most illustrious sons of Georgia. They feel also a reasonable hope that this bill will be favorably acted upon at this session of the legislature. In the interest of the bill many letters are being written. The resolution was introduced at the last conference by Mrs. Max E. Land, former state regent, and is being urged by the present state regent, Mrs. Charles Akerman, and Mrs. Howard H. McCall, representing the D. A. R. The U. D. C. is represented by Mrs. Walter S. Coleman, acting president, and Mrs. John K. Ottley.

Grieving Over Sons Killed in World War, Athens Man Suicides

Athens, Ga., August 2.—(Special.) James A. Harbin, for fifteen years chief city sanitary inspector, was found dead Wednesday in his room in the Vincent building with a bullet in his head.

Immediately after he was discovered Coroner C. N. Weatherly was summoned, a jury empaneled, witnesses heard and a verdict was returned that he came to his death by a pistol shot from his own hand.

Mr. Harbin had not been at his office at the city hall since Saturday, and was sick at his room, where he lived alone. Tuesday morning he was visited by Dr. W. W. Brown, who found him in bed. He said Mr. Harbin stated that there was nothing he wanted and that he would be back to work Wednesday morning about 6:30 o'clock. Anna Glass, negro who cooks for him, went to his room to prepare breakfast and could not get in. The screen doors to both rooms were locked and she couldn't get to the lock, for which she had a key.

She called the police. Patrolman McCune answered. When he arrived at the rooms and couldn't make

Pretty Girl Journalist Visiting Relatives Here

Miss Rosemary Christensen, of Lima, Ohio, a talented and pretty young journalist, is at the head of the woman's department of The Lima News. She is 20 years old and is conducting a daily department under the name of plume of Susie Smart. The column answers questions on love and home affairs, and Miss Christensen has created quite an interesting feature for her paper. Aside from her regular routine work, she is the musical critic, and also reports all of the women's meetings of importance, featured during the active program of club work.

Miss Christensen is a graduate of the Lima Central High school, and was literary editor of The Mirror, the monthly magazine published by the senior class. Her position as head of the department was offered to her by the managing editor, after the exceptional ability demonstrated by Miss Christensen, when she acted as proofreader for three weeks for The News. She intends to specialize on the Susie Smart column and to engage on her original and creative work.

Miss Christensen has been visiting her aunt, Miss Jennie Williams, in Atlanta, for the past six weeks and has been entertained at a number of informal social affairs. She will leave Tuesday for a visit to relatives in Knoxville, Tenn., before returning to her home in Ohio.

an entry, he cut the screen door and forced an opening. He found Mr. Harbin sitting in a chair at the foot of his bed, dead.

He was dressed only in his underclothes. The bullet from a .22 caliber pistol, had entered his right temple. It was the opinion of the doctors summoned that he had fired the shot late Tuesday afternoon or early that night.

No note was found or any reason advanced for the deed other than the theory of the colored cook, who believes that continued grief over the loss of his two sons, Troy and Audley, in the world war, caused him to take his life.

Predicts Democrat Majority in Lower House by 1924

Des Moines, Iowa, August 2.—Declaring that a profound revulsion in political sentiment now exists against the present republican administration and that this feeling is contributing greater strength to the democratic party each day, Henry Vollmer, temporary chairman of the democratic state convention, predicted a democratic lower house in congress in 1924 in his key note speech delivered before the convention here today.

"Two years ago we were buried under an avalanche of votes," Mr. Vollmer began. "Some seven millions, I believe, was Mr. Harding's plurality in the popular vote."

"Many said that this was the end of the democratic party; that no party could survive such an overwhelming disaster. These prophets have not been obliged to wait long for their complete discomfiture. A scant year and five months have elapsed since the present republican administration went into power and already a profound revulsion in political sentiment is in evidence throughout the country, even within the ranks of the republican party itself, as shown by the defeat of the machine in rock-ribbed Pennsylvania and stalwart Indiana, as well as in North Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa."

47 WOMAN'S WINDOW BY W. L. GEORGE

Mothers are given to complaining that their daughters pick up undesirable society, that they are continually in the company of penniless James, of Henry who is too fond of whisky, of Charles who is fond of too many girls in addition to their daughter. They also object to their daughter's female companions, to noisy Bella, and Vera the vamp. So they go about complaining that they don't know what young people are coming to, that Christine has a beautiful home and parents who adore her, and that it is really too bad that she should run about with these dreadful people who are sure to lead her into mischief, who are doing her a lot of social damage, and that something ought to be done.

Exactly. Something ought to be done. Not the continual grousing and grizzling which escapes from the fifty-year-olds whenever they behold the twenty-year-olds. Not the campaign of suppression and scandal and scolding which is employed. But something active. Why does your daughter make friends with boys and girls whom you don't like? She is not a stupid girl or an evil-minded girl; she has no natural impulse towards ill-mannered people; growing up in your home, how could she. What is the matter with her is that she very naturally desires society, amusement, and that she is taking what she can get because you are not giving it to her yourself. As we get older we tend to detach ourselves from society. Parties give trouble in the organizing. Also, our contemporaries die off and we do not like so well the people who replace them. We read the old novels over again and we reject the new interests. What the mother has to do is to dislike the society in which her daughter moves is to throw off business and give her the society she should have, open the house to the young, make them welcome. A girl will not seek beyond her home if there she finds her pleasure.

Banquo's ghost, Mr. Vollmer declared, that in place of the prosperity enjoyed under the democratic administration, under the republican administration, every turn. "Our failure to join in now behold millions unemployed, and that organization was nothing short of a national disgrace," he said. Mr. Vollmer told the assembled democrats known.

When Alex Leigh has freed her, fearing the persistence of Dominguez, he takes her to San Francisco, but not before she has discovered her and unwittingly revealed the fact that he loves her. On her arrival in San Francisco, she finds that Dominguez on the charge of murder, and a brief in friendly relations with Marjorie. A meeting finally takes place between Dale and Borden.

DALE learns that Diana is Borden's protective fiancée. The Spaniard affects a reconciliation but Marjorie loses another admirer.

INSTALLMENT NO. 82.

The News Is Broken.

As Marjorie and Diana were ascending the steps of the hotel they used three men coming down.

One of them walked with a graceful swing between the other two, who were keeping close beside him.

At sight of the two women, he stopped, swept off his hat and bowed low. By the electric lights of the white cochere, Diana recognized Dominguez, though he was swathed in a white ulster drawn high and close about his face. Only his flashing smile was visible, but his carriage was carelessly jaunty as ever.

Diana glanced back over her shoulder as she followed Marjorie through a revolving door.

Dominguez was entering a cab, the women close at his heels.

"Who was that man who bowed to you?" asked Marjorie. "Another of the victims?"

"It was Dominguez. He is being taken away to answer a charge of murder."

"Good heavens! And that terrible creature dared to make love to you?" wailed Marjorie.

It has a tinge of romance, some-thing she protested. "I suppose a man's love eyes can be so deadly. Besides, the man he killed being insulting to me."

Marjorie was speechless for a moment.

"It gets worse and worse," she declared finally, with a despairing gesture. "When will we ever hear the last of the consequences of your stay in New Mexico?"

Diana was silent for a moment, then: "I'm sorry they got him," she said. "Got whom?"

"Dominguez. I hate to see a picturesque creature like that lose out."

"He is a menace. If I were in your place and he had set his heart on me, I should have shot him."

I shouldn't have a peaceful moment as long as he was at large."

"Maybe you're right," shrugged Diana. "But—I don't know."

Memories.

She was seeing it all the moonlight across the desert country from the balcony of a Spanish house. Behind her, in the patio, she was hearing a fountain splash musically while an unseen bird wove a magic melody. A handsome Spaniard leaned toward her, his liquid voice pleading, his dark eyes gleaming with the fires of his emotion. Diana shrugged away the vision.

"So that is the end of that," she told herself as she prepared to retire. "Dominguez will go out like an extinguished candle, and I—I shall be the prosaic wife of a middle-aged doctor traveling about from one foreign port to another, intent only in passing my days and keeping out of the way of former acquaintances. What a curious thing life has turned out to be!"

But after she had turned out the light and was tossing restlessly on her pillows, she began to wonder what life would hold for her if Alex Leigh refused to let her go. Somehow this possibility had never occurred to her before. She had invariably achieved her own way and she thought that young Leigh might have definite views of his own on the subject by way of a startling conjuncture.

Thinking it over calmly in the dark of her room while she idly traced a pattern in the reflection of a street light on the ceiling, she almost believed that she would prefer Alex Leigh to hold her to her bargain.

Somewhat, Doctor Borden was different in San Francisco. She couldn't define it, but the resolution to be his wife which had seemed comparatively easy in New Mexico was scarcely tolerable in California. He was gradually ceasing to be a romantic and tragic figure and was becoming more and more the middle-aged doctor, whose past held a specter.

Perplexities.

Then too, Marjorie would raise a terrible row when she heard her intention to marry Borden. But there was no way out, unless Alex insisted on his claim. She had given her promise to Cynthia and it would be too brutal to cause her, or the doctor, more suffering than they had already endured.

Still pondering over her difficulties, Diana fell asleep without having reached a solution.

It was morning when some sound awoke her.

She opened a sleepy eye and perceived Marjorie in a dressing gown at the phone in the sitting room. Indistinctly she heard her aunt say: "I'll be down as soon as I can dress. Order breakfast for us both please."

"The Admiral!" thought Diana sleepily. "What an unearthly hour! Marjorie didn't lose him last night after all."

Then she went back to sleep.

There she woke her some time later. Her breakfast was on a tray and beside it lay a card.

"The gentleman he wait in yonder an hour or maybe." There she motioned toward the closed door of the sitting room.

"What gentleman?" Diana picked up the card, her heart leaping at the thought that Stephen Dale might be her early caller.

It was the card of the newspaper reporter who had already interviewed her once.

"What now?" she thought, as she slipped her chocolate.

Suddenly she remembered Dominguez.

Had the story of his arrest reached the papers already? Had the reporter remembered him as the man who had met them at luncheon yesterday?

terday? How awful if her name should be dragged into the murder story! Marjorie would rave then! She sprang up and rang for Therese.

"Tell the young man that I will be in directly. Then draw my bath as quickly as you can and lay out a frock. Hurry!"

In an incredibly brief time Diana was dressed and ready to receive her morning visitor. Her reflection in the mirror told her that she looked unusually pale. Perhaps it was the flaming copper of her hair against her dark frock. Therese had given her a simple little gown of black chiffon, undeniably becoming.

She reached for Marjorie's room, but decided on second thought, that perhaps her pallor would be appealing. If she looked desperately weary and distraught, perhaps he would grant her another favor today and keep her name out of the Dominguez story.

She greeted him with a languid smile and sank onto the chaise longue, motioning him to a chair opposite.

"Dominguez?" he asked, looking at her. "It was awfully good of you to see me, Mrs. Leigh. I scarcely expected it under the circumstances, but you were so kind about talking to me before that I told the chief I thought I could get a statement from you. I guess you'd rather the papers got the story straight than to have a garbled account, wouldn't you?"

Diana's heart sank.

Her worst fears were to be realized then. They had connected her with the Dominguez story.

"Please," she faltered. "Must I be in the story? I had nothing whatever to do with the tragedy, I assure you."

"Sure. I know," he said sympathetically, "but as his widow—"

"Widow?" Diana sat up electrified. "Dominguez's widow?"

"Dominguez?" he asked. "No! (Beggard!) Not Dominguez's! Young Leigh's!"

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Mops.

If the oiled mop is thoroughly shaken after each time it is used, it will keep clean for several months before a bath in hot suds is required.

A Use for Borax.

When doing up your fine white underthings, place a little borax in the water, which will not only tend to whiten them, but will add that bit of stiffness that is so delightful and fresh. It is easier than starch and will not stiffen nearly so much.

HOT WEATHER FEET.

This is the time of year when one's feet seem to give the most trouble. In the hot weather they seem to swell so every pair of shoes is too small and no pair is comfortable. The feet tire easily and the ankles ache. Here are some suggestions for cooling and refreshing foot baths.

Generally there is nothing so refreshing as a bath of salt seawater. Bases of rock salt or sea salt can be purchased at almost any shop and are never expensive. A very strong solution of sea salt and hot water should be made whenever you reach home tired, with aching feet. This should be put in a basin on the floor and the feet soaked for 15 or 20 minutes. They should then be rinsed with cool water and low-heeled slippers or heeled sandals worn.

If you have any tendency to rheumatism soak the feet in a strong, hot solution of epsom salts, then rinse and dry and wear heelless slippers for a time. If you haven't the time for this, when you come in tired and with aching feet, rub the soles and toes with a cut lemon, wipe dry and wear loose, low slippers for a while. If you have plenty of time give your feet the hot salt bath, then lie down with the feet still bare, turn on the face and stretch the feet out on a pillow soles upward. This is particularly effective if there is great pain in the insteps.

It always rests and protects the feet to give them a pedicure, which is of course always more easily done after a hot soaking. The more the feet are rubbed and massaged the more rested they will become and the more strength they will have to resist fatigue. Spraying them with toilet vinegar or toilet water is also refreshing. Talcum powder is always cooling and soothing.

A Male—With dark blue eyes and auburn hair your selection of colors in ties will be first—green, then brown, then blue, then red, then purple, then cream color and after these any colors except vivid shades in red. The advice given, for selecting colors of a darker shade than the eyes, is for the purpose of strengthening the color in types of people that need this help.

DOES HE TRY EXPERIMENTS? There is something that I want to write about today that some of my readers may think irreverent. I wish those whose bump of reverence is easily bruised would turn to some other portion of the paper because I really don't feel irreverent and this thought has been boiling around in me so long that I feel as if I must write about it.

Here's what started me thinking in this direction. I know a pretty woman whose prettiness has made her what I call a "taker." She has a husband who is very proud of her and very much in love with her and she takes everything from him and does not give a fair return. Furthermore, she has a very good mind but because she is pretty and charming and does not need to use her mind she has let it lie fallow. I had been thinking about her one day when this thought came into my mind: "How interesting it would be to see what would have been the development of that woman's mind and character if she had had the same mental and character endowment and had been plain instead of pretty."

And then came the thought which some may call irreverent. I should think it would be interesting to God to put exactly the same original endowment of mind and character behind two faces, one pretty and one plain, and then watch what happened.

Here's another thing he could do. He could put the same mental and character endowment in two bodies, one male and one female and see what effect the influence of sex differentiation had in the development. Would one character develop in the direction of patience and unselfishness, and the other in the direction of power and positive qualities?

Hovel or Palace. We have all seen the effect of wealth on character but it is of course, impossible to know surely what would have happened if the character had been placed in some other environment. What a fascinating experiment it would be for God to have the same character endowment put into two bodies and have one born in a hovel and one in a palace and see what each had made of the original endowment 50 years later.

I wonder if the Great Potter, or maybe it would be closer to the point to call Him the Great Chemist, does try such experiments? I wonder if He finds His interests in life in them? I wonder if it is irreverent to wonder? No, that's not true. I don't wonder. I feel that I know the answer to that. But I am afraid everyone may not feel the same.

Tomorrow—The Gratitude Hog.

SALVATION ARMY MAN

JUDGED NOT GUILTY

Rome, Ga., August 2.—(Special.) After being out 25 minutes to the jury in the case of Captain W. C. Cudd, former commander of the local Salvation Army post, charged with criminal assault, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

The case had been on trial in the superior court since early yesterday morning. He was charged with the criminal assault upon a Piedmont, Ala. girl, left in his charge six weeks ago. The argument of the defense was that the girl would not have been in the night following the alleged act at the home of the defendant had he been guilty as charged.

No. 46—Banister-Back Chairs.

The type of seat known as a "banister-back" chair was a product of the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries. It was doubtless suggested by the cased chairs, to which it is closely related in general design, and was probably contrived by local cabinetmakers when they found themselves unable to get cane. The split balusters, however, were an agreeable substitute. The seats were of the rush-bottomed type.

The chair illustrated is in the collection of the Metropolitan Museum in New York. As the cut shows, the back is composed of flat or "split" upright spindles cut in the shape of balusters or uprights which support the back. Four split balusters were generally used, but occasionally, as in this case, there were five. The front legs are turned and the front stretcher is carved with the characteristic scroll work of the period.

Some of the later and simpler banister-back chairs had plain, straight spindles not cut in baluster shape. Both armchairs and side chairs were made in this fashion. Walnut, maple and other woods were used. The reproductions are excellent for dining rooms, bedrooms and halls.

I have taken seven bottles now and am so happy that I am all over these bad feelings."

MOTOR BUS BILL

VOTE POSTPONED

Definite action was delayed by the senate railroad committee on the motor bus bill following a lengthy hearing Wednesday afternoon, and instead a subcommittee of four members was appointed to study the questions involved and report back on a substitute measure.

The bill seeks to designate motor buses hauling passengers as common carriers and to put them under the supervision of the railroad commission. It is being sponsored by the short line and other railways, and is meeting with bitter opposition from operators of motor bus lines. Members of the special committee are Senators Snow, Nix, Cone and Fleming, of the 10th.

Important developments of the senate session Tuesday morning were the introduction by Senators Jones, of the 37th, and Snow of a bill prohibiting the public wearing of masks in Georgia, and a vigorous fight over the University of Georgia board of control measure, which substitutes a board of control of five members for the existing boards of trustees of the university and its branches.

Program for Thursday. Debate was in progress at the hour of adjournment and the bill will be taken up again Thursday morning as unfinished business.

Wednesday afternoon the finance and appropriations committee approved the measure of Representative McMichael introduced in the house and passed calling for an investigation of the state highway department. The committee also amended and reported favorably the employment agencies bill, amending it to exclude teachers' agencies from its provisions.

Both the railroads and the motor bus people had strong representation before the railroad committee. Attorney P. A. Magabee was spokesman for the motor bus lines, and representatives of the traveling men of the state and of the automobile dealers also spoke against the bill.

Its passage was urged by W. L. Stanley, president of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, Attorney Robert P. Alston, its counsel, and Attorney A. S. Bradley, counsel for a group of the short line railroads.

"Injuring Railroads." The railroads contended that the motor bus competition is seriously impairing their business and should not go on unregulated.

The motor bus representatives replied that the railroads were simply moved by the desire to crush them out of existence if possible. They argued that they are rendering a necessary service to the public and submitted petitions signed by hundreds of persons in territory traversed by bus lines asking that the bill be killed.

In the senate the Jones-Snow anti-mask bill was referred to the corporations committee of which Senator Jones is chairman, and he announced that he will call a public hearing at an early date.

Speeches in behalf of the university board of control bill were made by Senators Cone, Fleming, of the 8th, and Jackson, while it was attacked by Senator Nix, who declared that it properly should be named "a bill to be entitled an act to build up a political machine for Governor Hardwick."

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Marriage of Patricia Pepperday

BY GRACE MILLER WHITE

Next Week, "The Magnificent Adventure"
By Emerson Hough

They went to a cozy room adjoining the library. "Now for that news," said Alexander.

"The most surprising thing has transpired," replied the lawyer. "Nancy can't be appointed administrator now."

Alexander's mouth opened, and his usually drooping lids spread wide. "And why not, pray?" he inquired with an effort.

"Well, it's like this," answered Shervin. "You'll remember how I used to prod Pat to make a will, and how he always put me off. Well, it seems he did make one without my help, and it's cropped up at last."

"Hell!" Then Alexander recovered himself in a measure and added, "How do you know?"

"I've seen it, and I've had it in my hand, Alex."

"Tell me about it."

"Pat left everything—to his wife."

In a most undignified manner Alexander bounced up. He turned giddily around and sank down again. "What?" he cried. "His wife! Patrick didn't have a wife!"

"Apparently he did," was the mild answer. "Anyhow, a girl came here today who says Pat married her."

"Did you see her, Frank?"

"I certainly did. I saw her marriage certificate, also; Alex, signed by Patrick."

A long silence ensued during which Alexander contemplated the tips of his boots in deep meditation. "Did Pat cut his mother off entirely, Shervin?" he exploded at length.

"Pat requested his wife to provide suitable support for Nancy as long as she lives. Patrick stated plainly that, if he gave anything to his mother outright, you'd waste it."

The court stamped its seal of approval upon the last will and testament of Patrick O'Kellon.

As it was still March and blustery cold, Patricia's first move was to open the Park avenue house in New York and establish her home there. Quite ill with unspoken suspicions that all was not as it should be with Michael, in spite of the fact that everybody told her he was in Europe, Yum-yum came from Balnville, Mrs. Clark, better in health, was transplanted from the chilly discomfort of O'Kellon island to the snug warmth of the city house.

For Patricia herself, the month had been a period of introspection and reconstruction. There were unendurable moments for her over Michael. Especially had she suffered the day she had told him of her marriage, but Frank Shervin had lightened her burden by accompanying her to Ossining.

Now that she had some liberty, Patricia decided to devote a part of the wealth, so strangely and unexpectedly hers to the use of the poor and unfortunate. She thought of Fancy Cavendish and induced the girl's mother to let her live in the Park avenue house. Thus it came about that one morning Fancy, all smiles, took George from the Brewer home and carried him to Park avenue in triumph.

Some days later when Frank Shervin entered his office he greeted a tall man who arose slowly.

"Were you waiting for me, sir?" Frank asked.

"Yes," was the stranger's husky reply.

There was a peculiar something about his caller that aroused the attorney's interest. Heavy, dark spectacles, encased in bone settings, shielded a pair of eyes which Frank imagined were weak and near-sighted. The poor fellow looked as if he had been through a long period of sickness.

"You don't recognize me?" he said. "No, I don't!"

The stranger drew a long breath. One thin hand went to his glasses, and he lifted them off. "I'm Patrick O'Kellon, Frank," he uttered with extreme difficulty.

After that neither spoke for several minutes. Patrick O'Kellon was awaiting recognition. Frank Shervin was staring into familiar brown eyes, eyes he had believed closed to sight forever. Slowly his kindly eyes filled with tears, and he dropped back into his chair. "Pat, boy! Patrick!" formed on his stiff lips.

Instantly Patrick was at his side, and his arm went around Shervin's bent shoulders.

"God sent you back to me, son. What happened to you?"

"It's hard to sort out just what did happen to me," said O'Kellon. "But the Butte police must have mistaken Eddie Blake for me. What caused his death I don't know. He might have killed himself, or he might have been blown up with the house."

"But you, son! You came, and I didn't recognize you."

"No wonder you didn't, Frank! I couldn't believe I was myself when I came to my senses. I'd been weeks in a Chinaman's hut. I was told that a couple of Chinese prospectors found me, literally full of holes and dying. My voice is about gone, and I've lost every ounce of fat I ever had. My hair fell out, too, and this—" he passed his hand hesitantly over his thick, dark hair—"this," he went on, "is a wig. I've got red fuz on my scalp like a new-born!" He stopped in his explanation. There had been a tinge of whimsically in his tones as he spoke of his bald pate, but it was wholly gone when he burst forth: "My mother, Frank! Where is she? And Alex Clark—"

"Nancy's much better than she was, old man," interrupted Shervin. "Do—do you remember that you—were married. Pat?" he questioned abruptly.

A hungry, haunted look swept into the brown eyes that were studying the speaker. "God, yes; that's the one thing I do remember," cried O'Kellon. "That's what sent me home almost before I was able to walk. Where—where is she, Frank? Have you—seen her?"

"Seen her?" repeated Shervin. "I should think I had seen her. She's living in your town house with her own folks and your mother?"

The signs of anxiety faded from O'Kellon's face. "Tell me all about it," he begged at last.

It took considerable time to repeat the happenings in the O'Kellon household since first Patricia had appeared upon the scene.

Then in a voice scarcely above a whisper O'Kellon told his story, punctuated with many pauses and lapses into silence.

Some hours later Patrick O'Kellon registered at an uptown hotel as "John Hullworthy, New York City."

The next day Shervin notified Patricia that he wished to turn over the routine work in Michael's case to a young lawyer whom he had known for many years, John Hullworthy.

In a few hours Hullworthy called upon her.

A very tall, thin man was leaning against the mantel when she entered the drawing room. "You are Mrs.—Mrs. O'Kellon?" he stammered.

"Yes, and you're Mr. Hullworthy," she returned. "Mr. Shervin phoned me you were coming, and you're very welcome."

"Mr. Shervin said you had a private matter you wanted to discuss with me."

"Yes, I have," she admitted slowly. "I have a relative who's in serious trouble," and then, to Hullworthy's consternation, she burst into tears.

Doggedly he clung to his chair. If he moved an inch, Patrick O'Kellon would go plump on his knees, and that would end everything.

"Mr. Shervin told me Mrs. Clark wasn't at all well," he interjected, as she wiped her eyes. "Forgive me for speaking about it now, but I was intimately acquainted with her son, and

CRACKERS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL WITH TRAVELERS

Warmoth Attempts Iron Man Stunt -- Wins First Game 7-1 But Loses Second to 0

Warmoth's Only Walk of Second Game Followed by Successive Hits by Moore and Smith Win for Locals.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Beating Atlanta representatives in the Southern league's championship race has become a mighty simple accomplishment for the Crackers, as evidenced, locally or abroad, when the fact is set down that some pitcher has trounced the Crackers.

But when a game gets to feeling with the law of averages, figuring that he has a healthy chance to beat the moundman is going to be left behind. The percentage is against a pitcher winning two games in one afternoon.

Take those two games at Ponce de Leon yesterday for example. Wally Warmoth, flinging for the visiting Travelers, won the first affair under wraps, having the Crackers at his mercy, while his opponent, Eddie Moore, the offerings of Allen Sells, a home-grown product, and finished on Mitchell, who is usually sent in when the situation becomes alarming. The score in this game was 7 to 1.

Most pitchers would have been satisfied with a single victory, but Wally was feeling intensely ambitious. The picking looked too easy and he asked for another crack at the unoffending Crackers. Manager Elbert fielded like three men, and Wally Warmoth was permitted to have his way with the result that his pitching average for the day was cut in half, as the locals succeeded in making two hits count for one run, while the Travelers tried in vain to couple their bingles for a single run.

Turo Winning Pitcher.

Oscar Turo, tendered an undesired beating in Tuesday's encounter, when his comrades collapsed, was Atlanta's winning pitcher and a lot of Cuban magic was put on every ball he sent across. He was simply unforfeitable, should one or twice, but when the fort was needed, Oscar had enough reserve to turn back every threat.

It can hardly be said that Wally's defeat was due to any weakness on his part. Six of the seven innings he twirled in the game he threw were hitless, and the Crackers were hitless in seven of the nine innings he pitched, but Wally was simply unfortunate in permitting the locals' two hits to become bunched.

He was wild, very wild, he passed six batters and had the bases filled in the fourth, walking three men in succession, when he was yanked in favor of Turo. The second twirler had better luck in finding the mark, but he was troubled greatly by Travelers sticking their bats out at just the correct moment.

Moore's Misadventure.

Misadventure befell Eddie Moore as he pitched for the first time in the first game, when he was hit by four errors, the greatest number ever rolled up by a pitcher in this season. He was given a brief taste of the fans' displeasure, but local customers quickly regretted their action.

Moore has an unfortunate way of making hard chances look easy and when he boots a shortstop at times—Eddie finds an error by his name, when the average short fielder wouldn't have been close enough to the ball to knock it down with a ten-foot pole.

The next time Eddie misses one, it might be well for the fans to remember that he is the only one in the direction who goes after every ball hit in his direction and that the hits he chokes off will far overshadow the errors he commits.

The Damage Starts.

When Sells walked Graff in the first inning of the opening game, he started the Travelers after their initial run. Boone hit first, Conner bobbled, Boone reaching first, Conner.

August 25—Chicago and Philadelphia pitched fifteen innings to a 7 to 7 tie today. The pirates called the game because of wet grounds. Both teams had frequent opportunities to score in the ninth inning, but tight pitching and brilliant fielding cut down base runners. The pirates tied the score in the ninth on two runs, an error by Rapp and an infield out.

Moken made his first home run in Philadelphia uniform the first inning with two runs.

Boorde Gets 60 Days' Suspension; Spiller Building Next Year's Club

By MIKE THOMAS

Freddie Boorde, local featherweight fighter, was suspended yesterday afternoon by the American Legion boxing commission for a period of sixty days and his part of the purse in the Boorde-Barnett battle was forfeited to a local charity, that has not as yet been designated by the Legion committee.

This suspension followed the disqualification of Boorde in the tenth round of his bout with Battling Barnett on Tuesday night's boxing card at Ponce de Leon, for biting his opponent on the shoulder in a clinch.

The battle, all the way through, had been a fair one, but Boorde, who had one-half of the crowd interested with the tactics of both fighters, in an earlier round Boorde threw Barnett heavily to the floor after Barnett had punched him rather severely with a headlock, according to the statements of several ringers, but referee Glenn seeing that both fighters were at fault and that Barnett was not seriously hurt by this violation allowed the fight to continue.

Boorde's suspension is the second that has been placed by the American Legion fight committee, and while the suspension will not affect the standing of Boorde elsewhere in this state, it will fit to follow a recent decision by the committee, Freddie will not appear in a local ring for the sixty-day period.

The first suspension that was laid for an amateur was on Tim O'Dowd, a series of attention John Glenn, a decision in favor of Pat Moore, after Tim's fight with this scrapper. But a suspension was lifted before it had expired by about five days in order that he could appear in a local ring before he returns to Texas where he has several bouts booked.

Therefore, their meeting should be a battle royal. The game is to be called at 4 p. m. and admission will be free. All wishing to see a good game of ball catch the usual cars for Ponce de Leon at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

WHEAT ADVANCES LOST AT CLOSING

Chicago, August 2.—Although uncertainty over the rail and coal strikes tended to lift prices a little in the wheat market today, declines at the last resulted from attempts at profit taking on the part of traders who had bought earlier. The close was weaker 1-8 to 1-2c net lower with September $1.05 5-8 to $1.05 3-4 and December $1.07 3-4 to $1.07 7-8; corn lost 1-8 to 1-3-8 and oats 1-8@1-4 to 3-9.

In provision the outcome varied from 7 cents decline to 5 cents advance.

New buying power appeared to be lacking in the wheat market when efforts to realize profits became so obvious, what general near the end of the day. There had previously been some revival of export buying here estimated at 100,000 bushels, but this had not appeared to have been done at concessions. Furthermore, gossip was current that Great Britain and other European countries were cutting buying and but slight improvement was noted in the domestic milling demand.

Complaints of car shortage which would have been a serious factor, had much impression in view of the fact that wheat receipts today at primary centers were 300,000 bushels in excess of the country's requirements, and because of the rail and coal strike, however, the country seemed to fear offering wheat to arrive, and rural areas were in the dark as to the light. On the other hand, the weakness of stocks and cotton, together with a new smash in German marks, was a factor of considerable influence as a deterrent to wheat buying here.

Prospects of better weather south-east as well as slowness of cash demand, weakened the corn market. Oats were neglected.

Lard reflected the bullish influence of a decrease in the warehouse stock here. Otherwise the provision market was governed by changes in the value of hogs.

Weather Report.

Washington, August 2.—Cotton was favorably affected by the weather, except where too dry in the more western portions of the belt and where too wet at a few central and eastern localities. The growth and condition of cotton were excellent in South Carolina, though plants are sappy and there is some shedding, and were generally favorable in North Carolina, except near the coastal plain. The weather was very favorable for cotton in Georgia, where the crop is doubtless well advanced.

The crop is fruiting well and is opening rapidly in southern portion, and generally fair advance was made in Alabama. The progress of cotton was very good in northern and southern Mississippi, but less favorable where too wet in the central portion.

The crop showed very good development in Louisiana and in most of Arkansas, but conditions are less favorable in Texas and Oklahoma. Cotton is shedding in Texas as a result of drought and high temperatures, although early planted continues from fairly good to very good.

good to very good condition. The progress and condition of cotton was fairly good in Oklahoma, but the crop is needing rain badly in the western portion. Weevil generally less active, particularly in the western portion of the belt.—Marvin.

Atlanta, Ga., August 2.—Very warm weather prevailed during the week ending August 1, with scattered local rains that were excessive only in a few widely separated localities; many counties are dry and need rain. On the whole, the weather was very favorable for most crops, especially for cotton, which made good to excellent growth during the week. Cotton is taking on fruit well, and the fruit is fastening.

OFFICIALS PROBE MONROE LYNCHING

Macon, Ga., August 2.—(Special.) That Monroe county intends to push the investigation of the lynching of "Cockey" Glover by a Bibb county mob, just across the line in Monroe county, was indicated today, when officials of that county came to Macon and secured the names of a number of men alleged to have been ring leaders in the lynching.

It was not intimated whether warrants will be served immediately, or whether action will await the meeting of the Monroe county grand jury the fourth Monday in August, at which Judge W. H. Seary has said an investigation will be made.

The wave of indignation at the action of the Bibb county mob in lynching the negro into Monroe county and the later action of Macon city officials in having the body returned to Forsyth, where City Detective Harrison is said to have left it in a lumber yard, where the coroner of Monroe county is located, is said to have swept over the entire county today when the facts became known.

The body of Glover was interred in a cemetery at Forsyth today.

Without publicity because of the fact that the lynching took place in Monroe county, Bibb county authorities say that as far as they are concerned, the matter is a closed incident.

The death of Sam Brooks, negro, who was shot during the trouble in the Broadwood rooming house Saturday night, when deputy sheriff Walter C. Byrd was slain, was the only new feature of the case. This makes the death in connection with the trouble, the victims being Deputy Byrd, George Marshall, Sam Brooks and Cockey Glover. Brooks and Marshall were innocent bystanders and are said to have been struck by bullets from Glover's gun.

The mob spirit appears to have died down today and the police permitted negro business houses Broadway to resume operation. Hatfield's pool room, where the shooting took place, has been permanently closed and action is expected shortly by city council, looking to the closing of all pool rooms in the city.

TEN MORE PRIMARIES
COMING THIS MONTH

BY ROBERT J. BENDER.
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, August 2.—Ten more primaries, including significant contests of national interest in Ohio, California, Mississippi and Texas, are still to be fought out this month.

Perhaps the greatest national interest in any of these will center in California, Mississippi and Texas, where the republican party is still to be fought out this month.

Former Senator Hiram Johnson, league of nations "bitter-ender" and sworn enemy of the republican "old guard," is expected to announce his return to the senate. In Mississippi the primary is of interest principally because former President William Howard Taft is expected to appear there, against Senator Vardaman, as he did in the Missouri primary just closed, against Senator Reed.

The California primary is August 29 and the Mississippi primary, August 15.

FATAL GUN BATTLE
IN TENNESSEE CITY

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 2.—John Taylor, claim agent for the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad is dead, and Dr. B. A. Deakins, prominent physician, and Billy Parks, well-known citizen are at the hospitals in a serious condition, as the result of a sensational gun battle in East Chattanooga.

Deakins was shot in the abdomen and leg by Taylor and then Parks interfered as a peace maker. Taylor turned his pistol on him and shot him through the left lung. Billy Parks picked up Deakins' shot gun and fired twice at Taylor. The first shot tore off one of Taylor's arms and the second shot hit him in the chest, causing instant death. The trouble was a result of an old feud between Taylor and Deakins.

INDUSTRIAL THEORY
DECLARED CHANGING

Wellesley Hills, Mass., August 2.—Industry is changing from "the theory of exclusion to the theory of inclusion," Vice President Coolidge declared today in an address outlining the development of industrial democracy in the United States before the ninth annual Wellesley industrial conference.

The trend toward this condition is already taking place in many industries, Mr. Coolidge added, citing the encouragement given employees to purchase stock, which "gives them ownership." They also are acquiring "management," he said, through making suggestions for the better conduct of the business to apply their inventive ability, to share in determining their wages and conditions of labor, and benefit from the general prosperity of the concern for which they work by means of sliding scales and piece work.

Discussing the content growing out of the war-inflation of business, prices, values and wages and the attempt to relieve it through "the general effort to get more and give less," he preceding the "inert reaction" and depression," Mr. Coolidge found that "the only recourse left is in spiritual things."

"We need a fuller realization and a broader comprehension of the meaning both of political and economic democracy," he said.

ROAD BOND ISSUE
FOR STATE URGED

Resolutions unanimously endorsing the proposed bond issue for state highways were recommended by the joint highways committee of house and senate, were adopted by the Georgia Association of County Commissioners at a special called meeting Wednesday afternoon on the Ansley hotel roof.

The resolutions were offered by Commissioner Hugh W. White, of Clarke county and were seconded by Representative Mann, of Brunswick.

The principal author of the several constitutional amendments necessary to put the bonds into effect, explained the provisions of the measures and answered a number of questions asked by commissioners from various parts of the state.

Statement by Neel.

W. R. Neel, chief engineer of the Georgia highway department, stated in answer to questions in constructing and maintaining the Georgia roads, and said that he had been consulted in the drafting of the bill in the legislature to offer bills by members of the legislature to offer bills with away with state maintenance of roads, he declared:

"It would be better for Georgia to do without a bond issue or federal aid than to abandon the maintenance of roads by the state highway department. I look upon that as the most important feature of our highway system."

"The department has been criticised for its apparent failure to maintain
